

MEDICAL ASSISTING

CERTIFICATE

About the Program

The Medical Assisting Certificate Program uses a combination of classroom work, lab sessions and “on-the-job” training to educate students in the necessary front and back office skills to become medical assistants. Students will learn how to record patient information, schedule appointments, assist physicians with examinations, and give patient injections and medications. The program is seeking CAAHEP accreditation for the CMA exam and is formally affiliated with AMT for the RMA exam and with NHA for the CCMA and CMAA exams.

The Aultman Advantage

Our college’s location on the Aultman Hospital campus immerses you in a health care environment and provides unique networking opportunities for careers following graduation. MA students have access to practicums at Aultman’s various locations and gain valuable experience working with patients from a variety of social and economic backgrounds.
